

<http://www.heritagetoronto.org/discover-toronto/community-stories/everything-tells-story>

Heritage and the OMB

July 11, 2008 - 9:10am
Heritage Toronto

Story Intro:

Taking into account heritage conservation in decision making

The conservation and protection of our heritage resources falls under a number of legislative acts with the most prevalent being the Ontario Heritage Act, amended in 2006. The amended Ontario Heritage Act has a direct link to the Ontario Municipal Board (OMB). Should a property owner be seeking demolition of a heritage designated property and the municipality does not support the request for demolition then the owner has the right to appeal before the OMB. Other heritage matters that are referred to the OMB are objections to the establishment of a heritage conservation district, or major alterations within a heritage conservation district.

... Read more

•

From July 11, 2008 www.heritagetoronto.org/news/issue under heritage issues.

20090707heritagetoronto OMB & Mad McD